

AT HOME LEARNING

It is Week 8 of “At Home Learning”!

It is almost June and we really want your child to be focused on preparing for the beginning of Grade Two. They should be putting forth their best effort consistently into their assignments. The focus should be on neatness and overall appearance, but also on the quality of their work. The written assignments should be increasing in length as they continue to add details to their work as well. They should also be engaging in self-editing for proper punctuation and spelling of high frequency words.

With the “Chalk” project this week, it is a great opportunity for your child to let their imagination lead the way and we are excited to see where it takes them. This book they are creating is such an amazing activity and every child will end up with their own unique story to match the shared illustrations. Please let us know if you would like your pages printed and made into a book for your child as a keepsake at the end of the week.
